

workshops and tours at the johnson museum of art

Explore the world of art right in the heart of campus. A visit to the Johnson Museum of Art can provide a time and place to decompress after a busy, stressful week, get your hands dirty, open your eyes, and spend time with friends in the company of extraordinary works of art.

Tours and workshops can be scheduled any time the Museum is open (Tues–Sun, 10 AM–5 PM). To arrange your visit, e-mail Kari O’Mara at kao73@cornell.edu, or call 607 254-4657.

All workshops begin with a short tour of related objects in our collection, and are followed by a hands-on workshop. Below are some examples of workshop topics. There are many more to choose from! We can work in watercolor, acrylic, ink, and charcoal. If you are interested in hearing about additional options, please contact us to plan something specifically tailored to your group.

- Alternative Photography: See where modern photography and traditional media meet to create a hybrid painting. Image transfers allow you to experiment with techniques and materials to create truly unique works of art. Transfer an existing photograph with this technique and bring your own inspiration to the image.
- Printmaking: The Johnson has a large collection of prints, including lithographs, woodblock prints, screen prints, and etchings. In this workshop we examine the different types of print-making techniques, and then make our own prints.
- Sculptures: This workshop demands that you get dirty! After looking at some examples of sculptures in the Museum’s collection from the pre-Columbian Americas to today, we use a self-hardening clay to create our own 3-D works of art.

We request a minimum of 5 students per group. Depending on the workshop, there should be a maximum of 8-15 per group and a $4 materials fee per person. Two weeks notice is required to get on our schedule.

Tours and workshops can be scheduled any time the Museum is open (Tues–Sun, 10 AM–5 PM). To arrange your visit, e-mail Kari O’Mara at kao73@cornell.edu, or call 607 254-4657.
